

Gut-Friendly Veggie Sandwich

This high-fiber sandwich features a tangy yogurt spread for a probiotic boost, plus shaved asparagus for a healthy dose of prebiotics to support a healthy gut. Shaving is a great way to enjoy raw asparagus. To shave the asparagus, use a vegetable peeler to peel the spears lengthwise.

Ingredients

- 2 tablespoons whole-milk plain strained (Greek-style) yogurt
- 2 tablespoons cream cheese (1 ounce), at room temperature
- 1½ tablespoons refrigerated basil pesto
- 2 (1½-ounce) slices sprouted whole-wheat bread, toasted
- 1 small clove garlic, peeled
- ½ cup frozen artichoke hearts, thawed, coarsely chopped and patted dry
- ½ cup shaved asparagus
- 1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
- 2 pickled cherry peppers, thinly sliced (about ¼ cup), plus 1 teaspoon brine, divided
- 1 small heirloom tomato, sliced ¼-inch thick
- ½ cup packed spring mix salad greens

Directions

Step 1

Combine 2 tablespoons each yogurt and cream cheese and 1½ tablespoons pesto in a small bowl; stir until smooth. Place 2 toast slices flat on a cutting board; gently rub garlic clove on top side of both slices until evenly coated. Spread both with the yogurt mixture (about 2 tablespoons each).

Step 2

Combine artichoke hearts, ½ cup asparagus, 1 tablespoon oil and 1 teaspoon pickled pepper brine in a medium bowl; toss until fully coated. Arrange tomato slices on top of 1 toast slice. Top with the artichoke mixture, ½ cup spring mix and sliced pickled peppers.

Step 3

Top with the remaining toast slice, yogurt-side down. Cut in half diagonally and serve.

Frequently Asked Questions

Can I make this sandwich ahead of time?

You can make the cream cheese spread a day ahead, but we'd hold off on assembling the sandwich until you are ready to eat; otherwise, the bread may turn into a soggy mess.

Can I substitute the spring mix salad greens?

Absolutely. We love spring mix salad greens, but this Veggie Sandwich would be just as delicious with romaine, baby chard or arugula.

What should I serve with this Veggie Sandwich?

This veggie sandwich pairs well with soup, making it a great excuse to use your slow cooker. If you don't follow a vegetarian diet, pairing this Veggie Sandwich with one of our top-rated chicken soups is comfort food at its best. And there are a lot of simple salad recipes that would be excellent paired with this sandwich for lunch or dinner.
