

Sun-Dried Tomato Vinaigrette

Many store-bought vinaigrettes have added sugars—but not this easy homemade one! This vinaigrette uses both sun-dried tomatoes and their flavorful oil, blending with white balsamic, lemon juice and garlic for a dressing that's rich, zippy and ready in seconds. Just shake it up in a jar and drizzle over leafy greens, grain bowls or roasted vegetables for an instant flavor upgrade.

Ingredients

3 tablespoons oil from sun-dried tomato jar

⅓ cup finely chopped oil-packed sun-dried tomatoes

3 tablespoons white balsamic vinegar

2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice

1 teaspoon garlic powder

¼ teaspoon ground pepper

¼ teaspoon salt

Directions

Step 1

Combine ⅓ cup sun-dried tomatoes, 3 tablespoons oil from the jar, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon garlic powder, ¼ teaspoon pepper and ¼ teaspoon salt in an 8-ounce container with a tight-fitting lid. Cover and shake vigorously until well combined, about 20 seconds.

To make ahead

Refrigerate in an airtight container for up to 1 week.

Frequently Asked Questions

Can I use dry-packed sun-dried tomatoes instead of oil-packed? ✓

Yes, but you'll need to rehydrate them first. Soak the dry-packed tomatoes in hot water for about 10 minutes, then drain well before chopping. Use extra-virgin olive oil in place of the tomato oil to keep the same texture and flavor balance.

What can I use instead of white balsamic vinegar? ✓

Red-wine vinegar, white-wine vinegar or regular balsamic vinegar all work well, just note that darker vinegars will give the dressing a deeper color and some will add a slightly more acidic flavor.

What should I serve it with? ✓

It's delicious tossed with mixed greens or roasted vegetables. Try it over grain bowls, pasta salads or even drizzled over grilled chicken or shrimp. You can even use it as a marinade for chicken, tofu or shrimp!
